

Fredo Viola The Sad Song

Because

One of the freshest combinations of styles that has been featured on this page for a while, Fredo Viola's sound is a curious mix of Philip Glass, Moondog and Radiohead inspired sonics. That said, these are mere reference points for a wholly original three-track set from the New York-based artist. Tunng and Prins Thomas add stand-up mixes, but there's something altogether a tad more mystical about the original work. A latent talent for 2008.
